Young stars get chance to hit big time

Young entertainers from Northern Ireland are being given the chance to earn the holiday of a lifetime.

New York producer Peter Sklar who is in the province to audition young people for free places in a professional entertainments art camp in America is seen outside the Group Theatre, Belfast, with three of the young hopefuls.

They are from top Pauline Carville (16) of Belfast, Judith Hunter (14) from Randalstown and Emma Louise Johnston (11) of Belfast.

Auditions will also be held in Enniskillen on Wednesday and the Salmon Leap Coleraine on Thursday.
